

SPECIAL SUNDAY

Native American Ministries Sunday

When you support Native American Ministries Sunday, you equip seminary students who will honor and celebrate Native American culture in their ministries. And you empower congregations that are finding fresh new ways to minister to their communities with the love of Christ.

“It’s a burden that I have to want to give back and to make sure every person gets through the course-of-study program because someone helped me get through.”

— THE REV. DR. JUSTINE WILSON, OF CHEROKEE AND OJIBWE DESCENT

---

“Creator God, I know you are always with me, and You know the benefit of community—where two or more are gathered in Your name. It always feels like it’s just you and me. I value our time but how do we move forward when community is fractured, like cracked bark on a tree?”

— BETHANY PRINTUP-DAVIS, A MEMBER OF THE TUSCARORA NATION OF NEW YORK

---

“I wanted to make an ecovillage community where we can be good to the earth, keep our language and culture alive, and be able to live as . . . full-time Indian[s] so that we don’t have to schedule a ceremony at the mercy of the American labor force schedule.”

— MARCUS BRIGGS-CLOUD, MASKOKE

SPECIAL
SUNDAY

Native American Ministries Sunday

When you support Native American Ministries Sunday, you equip seminary students who will honor and celebrate Native American culture in their ministries. And you empower congregations that are finding fresh new ways to minister to their communities with the love of Christ.

“It’s a burden that I have to want to give back and to make sure every person gets through the course-of-study program because someone helped me get through.”

— THE REV. DR. JUSTINE WILSON, OF CHEROKEE AND OJIBWE DESCENT

---

“Creator God, I know you are always with me, and You know the benefit of community—where two or more are gathered in Your name. It always feels like it’s just you and me. I value our time but how do we move forward when community is fractured, like cracked bark on a tree?”

— BETHANY PRINTUP-DAVIS, A MEMBER OF THE TUSCARORA NATION OF NEW YORK

---

“I wanted to make an ecovillage community where we can be good to the earth, keep our language and culture alive, and be able to live as . . . full-time Indian[s] so that we don’t have to schedule a ceremony at the mercy of the American labor force schedule.”

— MARCUS BRIGGS-CLOUD, MASKOKE

SPECIAL
SUNDAY

Native American Ministries Sunday

SPECIAL
SUNDAY

Native American Ministries Sunday

One of The United Methodist Church's six special offerings, Native American Ministries Sunday equips and empowers Native American pastors, congregations and seminary students to do what only they are called to do: authentically worship and serve Jesus. Half of our gifts stay with local ministries in this conference and half support the work of Native American United Methodist ministries nationally.

For example:

- Check with your annual conference office to find out how the NAMS offering is investing in local ministries. For example, a $100,000 grant from the West Ohio Annual Conference is providing necessary aid to Native American communities in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.
- Marcus Briggs-Cloud is actively reviving the Maskoke language through an ecovillage that practices intimate relationship with the natural world.
- United Methodist Native Americans are engaged in a long-term strategy to support and protect indigenous spirituality and rights around the world in partnership the World Council of Churches (WCC).

When you give generously on Native American Ministries Sunday, you equip seminary students who honor and celebrate Native American culture in their ministries. You empower congregations to find fresh and culturally appropriate ways to minister to their communities with Christ's love. Please make your gift today through UMCgiving.org/giveNAMS or write your check to your local church and write "Native American Ministries Sunday" in the memo line.

One of The United Methodist Church's six special offerings, Native American Ministries Sunday equips and empowers Native American pastors, congregations and seminary students to do what only they are called to do: authentically worship and serve Jesus. Half of our gifts stay with local ministries in this conference and half support the work of Native American United Methodist ministries nationally.

For example:

- Check with your annual conference office to find out how the NAMS offering is investing in local ministries. For example, a $100,000 grant from the West Ohio Annual Conference is providing necessary aid to Native American communities in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.
- Marcus Briggs-Cloud is actively reviving the Maskoke language through an ecovillage that practices intimate relationship with the natural world.
- United Methodist Native Americans are engaged in a long-term strategy to support and protect indigenous spirituality and rights around the world in partnership the World Council of Churches (WCC).

When you give generously on Native American Ministries Sunday, you equip seminary students who honor and celebrate Native American culture in their ministries. You empower congregations to find fresh and culturally appropriate ways to minister to their communities with Christ's love. Please make your gift today through UMCgiving.org/giveNAMS or write your check to your local church and write "Native American Ministries Sunday" in the memo line.